- Performance across DB/CBB Direct and Endowment portfolios has greatly improved since the real estate market trough in late 2009

Presentation Notes

The portfolio summary slides shows high level stats on the size and returns for both the DB and Endowments real estate portfolios. The DB program is now over 10 years old while the Endowment program is just over 7 years in and has a more fortuitous entry point as noted by the since inception return of 10.6%.

As of June 30, 2017

RE Strategy	NIC Performance	NFI-ODCE	NPI	Inception Date
Endowment Opportunistic	10.8%	8.9%	9.5%	12/1/2008

Presentation Notes

The private market equivalent analysis seeks to answer the question of whether the non-Core investments are providing alpha over the lower-risk Core alternatives. Non-Core performance is best measured through dollar weighted performance metrics (i.e. IRR) while Core indices have traditionally been provided in time weighted return ("TWR") methodologies. The private market equivalent analysis converts the Core indices from TWRs to IRRs by taking the cash flows from the non-Core portfolio and making hypothetical investments into the Core indices. This exercise allows for a like-kind comparison on performance.

The Non-Core components of both the DB program and the Endowment are providing alpha on a net of fee basis over the Core index. For the DB program, the Opportunistic investments have carried the Value-Added investments thus far, which is a sub-group have not outperformed.

¹Returns shown are time-weighted, which ignores both the timing and magnitude of cash flows into and out of the portfolio. While time-weighted returns are commonly used as a standard measure of performance in traditional asset classes, the Internal Rate of Return ("IRR") is a better and more common measure of real estate performance

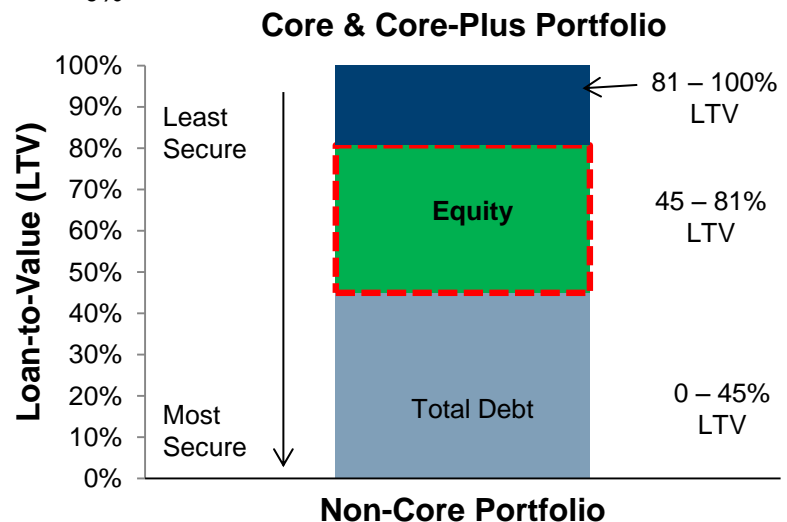

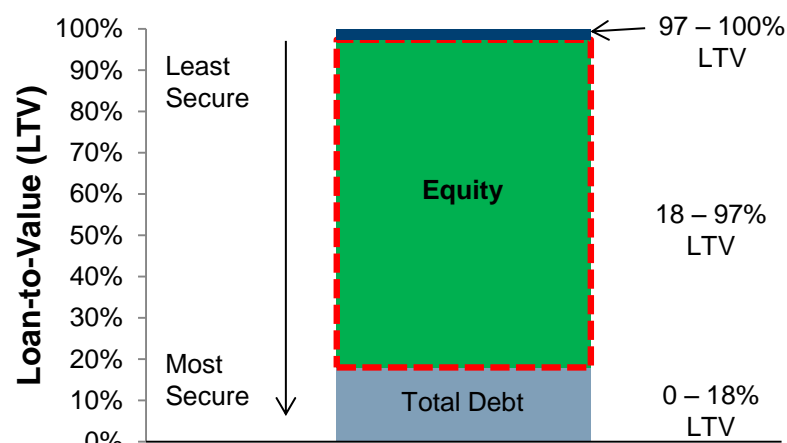

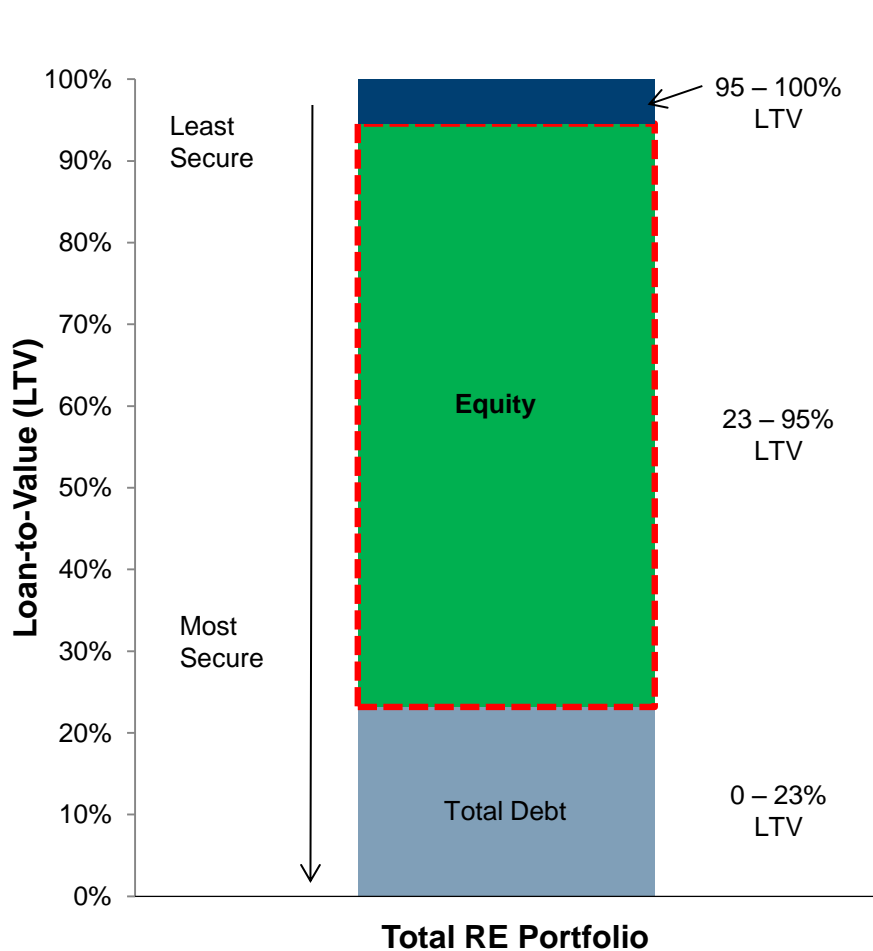

²Total Defined Benefit performance includes liquidated investments

Presentation Notes

Traditional performance measurement time weighted returns are depicted for the DB program. Real estate portfolios are best viewed on both a dollar-weighted return and time-weighted return basis as portfolios generally utilize both open ended evergreen structures for Core stabilized investments and private equity style closed end partnerships for alpha focused non-Core investments. Investors should focus on three- and five-year time weighted returns to evaluate total programs against traditional time-weighted benchmarks. Closed end funds can display some "noise" in time weighted returns when viewing start-up and wind-down periods which distort since inception returns. At this point the DB program is performing well against its benchmark.

DB/CBB Capital Stack Exposure

Presentation Notes

The DB Real Estate Program contains modest leverage at the overall portfolio level. As expected, the non-Core allocation has higher leverage (46%) but also contains preferred equity and debt positions through investments with Almanac and Torchlight that provide some equity cushion as the weighted average last dollar of exposure within the non-Core component is at the 86% LTV position. As the real estate cycle progresses, it is desirable to build in some cushion within the capital stack.

Presentation Notes

Strong equity markets in early 2017 have challenged the RE program to reach its target allocation which was increased in 2013. Allocation to Core should be allowed to drift higher within the policy range (50 – 80%) as the cycle moves from recovery to expansion. The lower leveraged style provides more downside protection late cycle than Non-Core and tweaking the split between styles is one of the most effective ways to manage downside risk in the portfolio.

Endowment Capital Stack Exposure

Presentation Notes

The Endowment Real Estate Program contains modest leverage at the overall portfolio level as it is anchored in Core funds which have an LTV of 20%. As expected, the non-Core allocation has higher leverage (48%). As the real estate cycle progresses, it is desirable to build in some cushion within the capital stack.
